Dear John,

Five years ago Susan Arndt helped me with a problem horse. I learned that there is a lot more to horsemanship than canter pirouettes and flying lead changes. I still have this horse and we are much better partners thanks to the time we spent with Susan.

Last summer my brother and his "horse crazy" niece moved to a town near Susan's farm. My niece, Kacey, was only five years old, but informed her mother that she was "saving money for riding lessons." I decided to give Susan a call.

Not too many trainers would have the patience or the horse for a five year old, but Susan has had both. Kacey loves her lessons, and I know that she is learning to ride in a safe environment. I am thankful that she is benefiting from Susan's expert instruction and special way with horses--there is no doubt she will have a better life with horses, but I also think it will help her have a better life in general. I have found that people who have helped me find a better way with horses, have helped me be a better person...."A teacher affects eternity; he can never tell where his influence stops." Susan is that kind of teacher. She is a credit to your program.

Sincerely,

Lisa Worcester
